East India and Pacific Trade of the United

We copy from the Boston Traveller the following abstract of arrivals and clearances of vessels engaged in the East India and Pacific trade from ports in the United States, during the past year. In Boston the California trade has not been taken in, but a separate abstract has been made of those vessels which have cleared direct for California. It will be seen that the clearances for East India ports have not been so great as in former years, as many of the vessels which have formerly been employed in the East India trade have cleared for California, and after delivering their cargoes there, have sailed for the East Indies, which will probably increase the number of arrivals from there the coming year.
